RITA KISIL, A MODEL OF FAITH & LOVE

Rita was never afraid of death. Her strong faith was palpable in all she said and did. Just three days before she passed away, Rita saw her husband Bill, who died in 2007, at the foot of her bed.

Rita relayed the story to her children about her late-night encounter. “The caregiver came in to see who I was talking to. I told her it was Kisil. He was wearing his wedding suit.” Rita smiled as she spoke, assuring her family all would be well. As usual, Rita’s faith and love was helping family and friends prepare for life’s next challenge.

Family always came first in Rita’s life. She grew up on Shonnard Street on Syracuse’s west side in a loving, hard-working family. They were active members of St. Lucy’s Church. Her father owned and operated Whitehouse Bakery. Growing up during the Depression was challenging, but the family was grateful for what they had.

Rita recalled a time in grade school. “It was my birthday and no celebration was expected.” Rita continued with a giggle “So I invited all of my friends to my house after school—without telling my mother. She didn’t get mad. She went inside and brought out a big pitcher of chocolate milk. We each got a glass. We were all so happy. It was a great day.”

Rita celebrated her 1st birthday at St. Francis House with her family.

When Rita grew up, she continued to focus on family. She always felt her heart and her home were big enough for whoever needed to be included. She was always working. First at the phone company, then her father’s bakery, and she then decided to become a nurse. Her days were busy working at Crouse-Irving and Hutchings. However, she always had time for her family which included her 7 natural-born children and 4 foster children. She expanded her family with 5 unwed mothers who found themselves pregnant with nowhere to turn. Rita welcomed them, and their children, into her home.

Earlier this year Rita had a surprise visitor—the son of the once teenage mother that became part of Rita’s family. Now a successful attorney, he was traveling in this area and went to his childhood home to find Rita had moved due to her illness. He found Rita and spent the afternoon sharing updates on his family, thanking Rita for saving his life and enabling him to have a full life with a wife and three children of his own.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

The Butterfly Conservatory in Niagara Falls, Canada is a magical place. As you walk through the maze of green plants and brightly-colored flowers, you see butterflies of all sizes and colors flying around from every direction. If you are fortunate, one of these delicate creatures will be attracted to you and land on your shoulder, head or hand. On one particular visit, I was wearing a multicolored, Francis House pin. A beautiful blue butterfly landed on it and stayed- until it realized it was not a food source! For that moment though, I felt pure joy.

Butterflies have had many meanings to different cultures and religions for hundreds of years. They have been described as a symbol of the Divine presence in all life and the call to embrace it. In some traditions, the butterfly means strength, hope or life transformation.

In the Christian tradition, the butterfly can symbolize resurrection and the spirit of someone we love. The stained-glass window in the meditation room at Francis House has three sections. To the left is the caterpillar itself crawling on the surface of the earth. To the right is the chrysalis, or pre-emergent butterfly hanging from a branch. The center section contains a stunning monarch butterfly, wings spread, ready for flight. For us, the butterfly symbolizes the transformation our residents experience as they shed their human bodies and become fully alive, free spirits. It is a powerful and deep representation of life.

Recently a caregiver shared that as he sat on his porch having tea, a monarch butterfly flew around him. He had not seen many monarch butterflies and thought how unusual it was. After contemplating the moment, he thought about a resident to whom he had spent some time at the end of his last shift. He called Francis House and was told that the resident had passed away that same morning. To this caregiver, the butterfly was a symbol of that resident, free and happy.

Thank you for the support you give to Francis House so that we may continue to be there for the people who need us as they approach the end of life. Thank you for making our home one of strength, hope and transformation. Thank you for giving us the opportunity to witness the Divine presence in all of the special people we welcome through our doors.

In Peace and Gratitude,

Nancy Light, Executive Director

The following week his mother traveled from Missouri with her husband to say goodbye to Rita and thank her for being an answer to her prayers.

Rita was never without visitors at Francis House. Her family was always by her side. Staff, volunteers and visitors enjoyed Rita's stories and her wit. A favorite story was about the infamous date with her future husband.

"My pastor told me that when I found a good man, I should spill my soup on him in public. Then I could watch his reaction and know how he would treat me. So, one night we were at a restaurant and I dumped my whole bowl of soup on his lap. He just looked at me and calmly said, "Don't worry, it's alright. That's when I decided I would marry him."

Rita touched many people in her life. She gave her time to church and many other community organizations. She always offered support.

Even in her final weeks of life, it was Rita who helped her loved ones accept her illness and her prognosis. She was unwavering in her strength and her faith. We were blessed to welcome Rita—and her extended family—into our Francis House family.

Rita celebrated her 91st birthday at Francis House with her family and friends.

THANK YOU ISABEL

In July, we said goodbye to Isabel McCormack, our Francis Corps volunteer for the past year. Isabel had a beautiful connection with our residents and families. We wish her success as she pursues her path to becoming a nurse.

Discovery Of Love

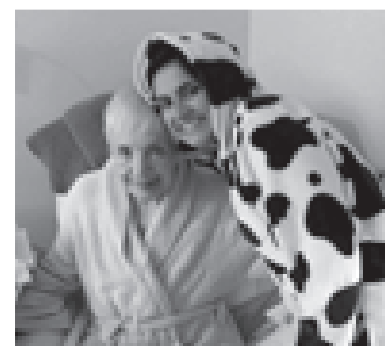

By Isabel McCormack, FC 20

Where am I called to go from here? Well, physically, in a few weeks, I am packing up and leaving Syracuse, leaving Francis House, and going home. I am hopefully starting a nursing program in Chicago within the next year, which is a decision I am confident in, and one that I can thank Francis House and its entire staff for helping me to see so clearly. When I think back to this year, though, I am not going to hold in high regard the moment that I made the decision to become a nurse. I am going to remember all the moments, both incredibly challenging and life-giving, that have shaped me into the person that has not only made the decision for my next step, but has also impacted each step I will take after.

I am heartbroken to leave Francis House, and yet so ready to go on to my next adventure. I am going to take so much from Syracuse with me: the love from residents and their family members, memories from staff and volunteers who have become like family to me, the personal growth I've made, the many frustrations and joys both at the FrancisCorps house and my service site, and the life-changing friendships I've made. Each experience I've had this year, both large and small, impacted me and altered my trajectory for the path I am taking in life.

The most impactful "experience" I've had this year that I am going to be taking with me, and definitely the hardest to explain in a short blog post, is a new discovery of love. I have soaked up so much love and joy this year at Francis House, and reflecting on it, I know that I am called to share that love wherever I go, starting at home with my family and at school, and continuing on to my profession. I am called to a life of service, no matter where I am or in what capacity I am serving. There is a handful of people whom I have met this year, or have heard about from other service sites in Syracuse, who have taught me this lesson.

They live with so much love and generosity, not just doing service, but living service. Those are the people who change the world, one small community at a time. Those are the people that have inspired me, and that's how I know where I am called to go from here. I have learned from this year that am called to be a nurse, but more than that, I have learned that I am called to be one who has a heart for service. I am called, to the best of my ability at every stage of my life, to reach out to and to generously serve both the people around me and those at the periphery.

Volunteer Spotlight:

MADDY OLIVER, FRAN AND LARRY CAMPBELL: INSPIRING FRIENDSHIP

Maddy Oliver was standing in line at a store and overheard a woman talking about Francis House and what a wonderful place it was. “It was perfect timing,” shares Maddy. “I had been retired a few years and I was looking for a meaningful way to spend my free time.” She decided to call Francis House for a tour and began volunteering the next day. That was fifteen years ago.

After a few years of volunteering, Maddy brought her friend Larry Campbell to volunteer with her. Larry says it was an easy decision to sign up as a volunteer. “He has such an easy rapport with residents,” shares Maddy. “He sits right down and has genuine conversations. It makes me smile.”

In 2013, Larry’s mother-in-law Nancy Poillon became a resident at Francis House. It was then that Larry’s wife decided to join her husband Larry and her long-time friend Maddy in volunteering. Fran knew she had something special to offer after her experience. Every Wednesday evening Larry volunteers; and Maddy and Fran alternate weeks to volunteer with Larry.

When all three were asked why they continue to volunteer, they responded, “We are inspired by seeing the wonderful caregivers, staff members and volunteers giving wholeheartedly of themselves to this ministry. We are proud to be a part of this unique and important service to our community.” The three say their favorite quote sums it up, “I learned to create from another’s suffering my own usefulness, and once you know how to do this, you can never refuse.”

When they are not volunteering, the three, along with Maddy’s friend Richard Lightcap, often spend time together. They enjoy travel and winter in the same community in New Smyrna Beach, Florida. During SU basketball season they are rooting for the Orange.

The three also share common careers in education. Maddy, a teacher, and Fran, a teacher and librarian, taught together at elementary schools in the Jamesville-Dewitt District for over 30 years. Larry taught for 27 years in the East Syracuse-Minoa School District.

Maddy had a long, happy marriage to Richard Oliver, a middle school principal in the East-Minoa School district, who passed away in 2010. She has four stepchildren, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. She enjoys gardening and hiking trails in our area and the Adirondacks with her friend Richard.

Larry grew up on the south side of Syracuse. He met Fran, an Albany native, through his sister. Their first date was at a peace march. This year they celebrate 45 years of marriage. They have one daughter and a granddaughter.

We are grateful for the commitment Maddy, Larry and Fran have to supporting our residents and families. But they insist they receive much more than they give. Shares Maddy, “Just the other day someone thanked us for being here. My response was, ‘We love being here with you.’ The woman replied, ‘We can tell you do!’ That was the most wonderful thing anyone could say to us. We love being at Francis House!”

She reported on the volunteer activities of the group and that they had collected 1,100 rolls of paper towels for the house over the past year. The Youth Auxiliary presented Francis House with a check for $1,200.

THE FRANCISCAN PERSPECTIVE

Francis House is named after St. Francis of Assisi. Our mission and values, and the guide for our ministry, are rooted in Franciscan values. But what are Franciscan values and what it means to be Franciscan in the world we live in? We asked Sister Kathleen Osbelt, Founder of Francis House, to share her thoughts on the Franciscan perspective:

The Franciscan perspective on the world has always been one of abundance. Our gracious Creator loves us with an abundant love that never stops, no matter what we do, who we are, or what mistakes we make. That abundant love has surrounded us with an unending supply of gifts... food, beauty, family, community. And it is gratitude for these gifts that is the hallmark of the Franciscan or anyone, who is aware of this overwhelming love and generosity of God.

Followers of the Franciscan Tradition believe in a loving God who desires for us to live as One. A God who calls us to unity and reciprocity, while celebrating diversity.

This means regarding all things and people with great respect and reverence. All creatures bear the mark of the Creator and are meant to be regarded by us, as God regards them. This means that there is nothing and no one superior to anything or anyone else. There is nothing or no one who is undeserving of love.

Both of these perspectives undergird the values by which all of us at Francis House fulfill our ministry. We are ever grateful for the abundance of gifts that we observe every day: those gifts of time, which come through our caregivers and volunteers as well as the gifts from our donors. All residents are a gift to us by allowing us the privilege of caring for them in their last days. We celebrate and hold in great respect the diversity of each person as we strive to regard each person with that unconditional love of God.

Francis House is blessed with our very large family of residents, their families, staff, volunteers and donors. Together, we create a piece of what Jesus called the "Reign of God."
